 Report from [redacted] Functions Coordination IAC-D-22/1
 Ass't to the Director to Consultants Techniques
 Associate Historian, "The Office of Research and Reports (ORR)"; 14 pp.

ABSTRACT Report begins with description of ORR's functions in relation to economic intell, the NIS program and coordination. It then explains basic concepts on which ORR operates and its achievements in emphasizing importance of economic intell, the functions of which are described. The mission of ORR, concerned mainly with the USSR and Eastern Europe, and techniques in determining and acquiring intell needed to fulfill this mission are explained as are functions of Geographic Division and Economic Intelligence Council.* Also covered is use of outside sources-from consultants to universities to foreign agencies-and ORR's relation with them. Finally two major problems are discussed-the organization of existing info which is usually widely scattered and uncoordinated and the lack of operational knowledge, a situation that keeps ORR from being alert for new developments and estimating potentials in the USSR.
